“ Carol was a second mother to so many, she gave most of the kids in HP a ride to school, and she always provide fashion tips. What I love most about Carol is she wasn't afraid to jump in when someone needed help. And, when she jumped in to help, I know from first hand experience ; her girls were there to help. I will always cherish the childhood you helped me have. I still use all you taught me during our late night lessons on how to be a strong classy woman. What I love most about you is how your eyes always shown what you felt and towards me; it was usually love, unless I had the girls clothes, then I knew, I better get my butt down to my house and bring them back to your house. Shh.....you always let me take more home..
I love you so much. Thank you for providing me with a second home with a family, and the desire to better myself with education;but most of all; someone I could always count on. For instance, I still reminder the “front room” phone number; just in case I ever lost my way, I always knew who I could call.

Rest In Peace, I will love and remover you forever.
