“ Dear Aunt Wanda, Jeff, and Jen,
Mom remembers there was always a lot of laughter when Henry was around. Uncle Henry was gentle man with a dry wit and a strong love of family. During our many visits we would always find Uncle Henry behind his easel, paint brush in hand, creating another one of his beautiful water colours. It was during one of these visits that the angry sales lady came over to Mom and demanded to know which one of us three "bit the velvet". Jeff was never suspected but that decades old mystery still remains unsolved!
My deepest condolences on your loss of a loving husband and wonderful father. Uncle Henry, this is not good bye but only until we meet again.

Your niece,
Carol Marchinetz
